

neXfin GRAIN FINANCING

Shifting boundaries with neXfin Financial Services.

What is neXfin Financial Services?

neXfin Financial Services is a new in-house finance division within neXgro. Grain financing in traditional Safex silos as well as accredited on-farm grain storage (OFGS) has been successfully implemented across various sites and farms in our network.

neXfin sets a new benchmark for grain financing in OFGS, far in excess of market offerings.

Why is grain finance so important?

In any business, cash flow is of the utmost importance. Generating upfront cash flow with grain financing, without the need to sell off your product, empowers our producers to utilise these funds for other cash flow needs.

It is important to note that the grain producer remains in control of their marketing decision. The producer still decides when to price and to whom they want to sell.

How does grain finance benefit producers?

Until now, producers were forced to sell their grain to cover on-farm and general expenditures. Now producers have the freedom to extend the pricing period of their grain and still manage their cash flow. This further empowers producers to benefit from the potential upside in market prices later in the year as and when they price.

For our network of producers, it promises better ongoing benefits through their relationship with neXgro.

Supported by neXgro systems and processes, producers whose OFGS grain bears the neXgro accreditation stamp can confidently finance their products, price their product at any time, and/or trade on the neXdeal platform alongside Safex-registered silos to discover the best basis price.

What requirements are necessary to finance my grain?

All we need is:

- 1 a Safex certificate; or
- 2 a neXgro OFGS grain certificate transferred to neXfin.

Competitive interest rates and administration fees apply.
